1 Introduction

1.1 Background

The Council of Australian University Librarians (CAUL) has a longstanding relationship with Insync Surveys to assist CAUL members to develop, administer and analyse client satisfaction surveys. Insync Surveys ensures that libraries can measure performance against each other, which in turn enables libraries to develop the highest possible standards of service for library users. Consistent with this agreement, Insync Surveys was retained by the University of Canberra Library to conduct a survey of its clients so that their views, ideas, and suggestions can be considered as part of its commitment to improvement. The results of the University of Canberra Library's client survey are compared with other university libraries in the Insync Surveys database, which has been built over 10 years.

1.2 Survey Objectives

The primary objective of the survey is to provide the University of Canberra Library with a way to identify key client concerns. More specifically, the objectives of the survey are:

- To identify, prioritise and manage the key issues affecting clients
- To allow the Library's performance to be measured and monitored over time
- To provide clients with the opportunity to communicate openly and honestly with the management team of the Library
- To compare results with other university libraries in the database so that performance can be measured against external standards

1.3 Survey Process

The survey required all clients to provide some demographic information. It then displayed 40 statements - called 'variables' - considered critical to the continued success of the Library. Clients were asked to rate each statement twice – first to measure the importance of each of the statements to them and second to measure their impression of the library's performance on each statement.

Clients of the Library were given the opportunity to participate in the survey in June 2008 by completing the questionnaire anonymously. This confidentiality helps ensure that the true concerns of the clients are identified. The survey could be completed both online and paper. This is the second Insync Surveys survey of its kind to be undertaken by the University of Canberra Library, with the previous survey being conducted in May 2006.

1.4 Response Statistics

The following table details the number of usable survey forms received from clients of the Library. Where a minority of clients do not indicate their demographic information, these forms are consequently classified as 'Unspecified'.

In total, 1024 responses were received, significantly less than the 1479 respondents for the 2006 survey. This number of responses provides a high degree of confidence in the results obtained at the overall university level. The confidence level based on the university population is 95%, +/- 3%. The response statistics table shows:

- A majority of the respondents were Undergraduate students, with 684 responses (66.7%), followed by Postgraduate students with 145 responses (14.1%)
- The best represented area of study, research or teaching is Business and Government with 210 responses (20.5%), followed by Communication and International Studies with 172 responses (16.7%)
- A majority of the respondents physically visit the library 2 to 4 days a week with 346 responses (35.6%), followed by Daily visits with 185 responses (18.0%).
- Thirty three percent of the respondents indicated that they accessed the online library services 2 to 4 days a week followed by nineteen percent of the respondents that accessed online services Daily.

2 Detailed Results Interpretation

2.1 What Clients Believe is Important for the Library

The 10 highest ranked importance variables for University of Canberra Library's clients are listed in descending priority order in the table below. The 2006 results are also reported to enable a comparison.

| June 2008Top 10 Importance                                     | Mean | May 2006Top 10 Importance   | Mean |

Common to 2008 and 2006

Of the 40 statements in the survey, 19 were identified with importance means of 6.00 or higher. These statements are all of relatively high importance to clients.

□ Unique

The themes of the variables in the top 10 importance list include staff (i.e. being friendly, helpful, fair and non-discriminatory, and displaying professionalism), the adequacy of databases and electronic resources, and the ease of access to information resources. Other variables relate to the access to electronic resources being readily available, the ease of using the library website, the adequacy of the library collection, the clarity and usefulness of the information in the library catalogue, and course specific resources being easy to find and access.

Nine of the variables overlap with the 2006 result. There has been a slight decrease in importance scores since the last survey for all of the common variables meaning that clients now see them as slightly less important.

2.2 How Clients Believe the Library is Performing

The table below reports, in descending order, the 10 variables ranked highest in performance by University of Canberra Library clients in 2008 as compared with those ranked highest in 2006.

(N.B. Factors marked * have also been identified as top 10 importance issues)

- Common to 2008 and 2006
- □ Unique

The survey identified 29 questions with scores greater than 5.00. All of these variables are considered strong performers, with 5.00 representing a relatively strong average rating on a seven-point scale.

Seven variables in the top 10 performance relate to library staff – more specifically: their fairness, professionalism, friendliness and helpfulness, timely responses and availability to assist, quality service and clear and accurate feedback. The three remaining variables relate to the clarity and usefulness of the information in the library web pages, adequacy of opening hours and the ease of using the library website.

The top 10 performance list contains four factors from the top 10 importance list, as indicated by the red asterisks. This is a positive result for the University of Canberra Library. Not only are these factors among the most important issues to clients of the library, they are also being performed well.

When analysing the performance results, it is important to keep in mind that we are dealing with clients' perceptions of the Library's performance. A review of the 'Best Practice Categories' graph is also recommended for individual variables. This allows for a comparison of scores for individual variables with the performance of other libraries in the Insync Surveys database. In considering how the top 10 performing variables compare when benchmarked against other libraries, it was found that their placement is distributed between the first and second quartiles.

More specifically, one variable is first quartile performer (top 25%):

Opening hours meet my needs

Nine variables are second quartile performers (top 50%):

- Library staff treat me fairly and without discrimination
- Library staff display professionalism
- Library staff are friendly and helpful
- Service desk staff respond in a timely manner
- Library staff are readily available to assist me
- Library staff provide quality service
- Library staff provide clear and accurate feedback to my queries
- Library web pages provide clear and useful information
- The library web site is easy to use

All of the 2008 top 10 performance list variables are common with the list from the 2006 survey. For six of the variables namely, library staff display professionalism, library staff provide quality service, Service desk staff respond in a timely manner, Library staff provide clear accurate feedback to my queries, library web pages provide clear and useful information and library's web site is easy to use the performance scores have improved over these years, which is a positive result for University of Canberra Library.

At the other end of the scale are the lowest performing variables. This table shows the 10 variables given the lowest rankings by Library clients in 2008 as compared with those ranked lowest in 2006. Please note that the lowest performing variable appears first on the list.

(N.B. Factors marked * have also been identified as top 10 importance issues)

- Common to 2008 and 2006
- □ Unique

The lowest 10 performance list has two variables in common with the top 10 importance list, namely, The library collection is adequate for my needs and Databases and electronic resources are adequate for my needs – an indication that in this instance, clients' expectations are not being met.

Nine variables from the current lowest performing list are common to those identified in the previous survey. All of the variables recorded performance scores below five on a seven point scale. The performance scores for all of them have slightly improved since the October 2006 survey except for computer facilities/electronic equipment are adequate which had a slight decrease.

From a benchmarking perspective four of the lowest performing variables are unique to the University of Canberra Library survey and therefore could not be benchmarked. The following variables are distributed between the first and third quartile when compared with other libraries in the database.

More specifically, one variable is a first quartile performer (top 25%):

• Library staff keep me informed about new services, resources and collections

Four variables are second quartile performers (top 50%):

- Library staff act on my suggestions and ideas
- Prompt corrective action is taken regarding missing books and journals
- Group study facilities are adequate
- Facilities for using personal laptops are adequate

One variable is a third quartile performer (bottom 50%)

Library collection is adequate for my needs

2.3 Where Clients Believe the Library Can Potentially Improve

In identifying factors for improvement, Insync Surveys analyses the perceived difference – or 'gap' – between the importance and performance scores for each variable. These gaps indicate areas of frustration or dissatisfaction for clients and therefore represent potential improvement opportunities. Based on our research, gaps of or above 2.00 are considered significant. It is important to note that a larger gap does not indicate a larger problem. Instead, it indicates an increase in certainty that the variable is of some level of concern.

The table below reports the 10 variables with the highest gap scores for the 2008 and 2006 surveys.

| June 2008Top 10 Gaps   | Mean | May 2006Top 10 Gaps   | Mean |

(N.B. Factors marked * have also been identified as top 10 importance issues)

| Common to 2008 and 2006 |
|-------------------------|
| Unique                  |

Note: In 2008, the statement 'Access to electronic resources is readily available' was altered to 'Access to electronic resources is easily available'

From all 40 variables, only one recorded a gap score in the significant range, which is a positive result for the Library. The variable, The number of computer workstations is adequate, can be considered a potential improvement opportunity since it has a gap score of 2.20 and also presented a significant gap score in the previous survey.

The top 10 gap list contains six variables from the top 10 importance list, as indicated by the red asterisks. These are:

- The library collection is adequate for my needs a third quartile performer (bottom 50%)
- Databases and electronic resources are adequate for my needs this is a unique variable for this survey, hence it is not benchmarked
- Access to electronic resources is readily available a second quartile performer (top 50%)
- Course-specific resources are easy to find and access a second quartile performer (top 50%)
- Library catalogue provides clear and useful information a fourth quartile performer (bottom 50%)
- Library catalogue provides clear and useful information this is a unique variable for this survey, hence it is not benchmarked

All factors that were of concern to clients in 2006 appear on the list again in 2008, and importantly, nine of the nine gap scores have slightly decreased over time.

2.4 Prioritising Potential Improvement Opportunities

Analysis of these gaps enables the Library to prioritise strategies for improvement around factors considered most pressing by clients. For an issue to be considered in need of attention, it must have both a gap score above 2.00 and be of high importance. A significant gap score together with a low importance score is indicative of a non-issue for clients. Conversely, a significant gap score together with a high importance score suggests an area of concern.

This information is calculated by and reported in the gap grid. It is a unique visual tool that allows you to see several key pieces of information within the one diagram. For each survey variable it shows the performance score (horizontal axis), the importance score (vertical axis) and the gap score (colour coded). Using this information, the factors that should be prioritised as improvement opportunities can be identified. The gap grid is a highly effective tool at an aggregate level and also at a specific demographic level.

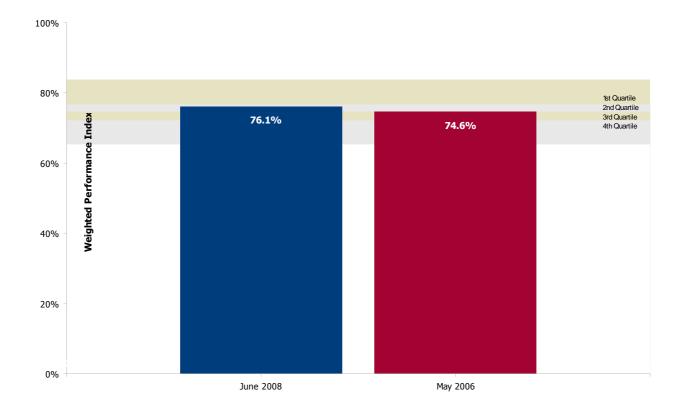

The following area was identified as a potential improvement opportunity for University of Canberra Library given the relatively high gap score:

The number of computer workstations is adequate

It is important to explore how this issue could be addressed before this becomes more problematic.

2.5 Comparison With Other University Libraries

The University of Canberra Library has recorded an overall score of 76.1%, indicating a result in the second quartile (top 50%) when compared with other libraries in the Insync Surveys database. This reflects an increase in score of 1.5% since the previous survey in 2006.

The following graph shows the performance scores of University of Canberra Library, within the range of other library scores, across the six survey categories. At the time the University of Canberra Library survey was administered, 40 other university libraries had completed benchmarking surveys. It is this group that makes up the comparison group.

The three highest priority categories for the clients of University of Canberra Library are Library Staff, Virtual Library and Service Delivery (as indicated by the bold numbers in the following graph). The highest performing category is Library Staff which is sitting at the top of the second quartile when benchmarked externally. The Library Staff category had a similar performance in the previous survey. A more specific view of results on each variable within the categories can be found in the detailed data analysis.

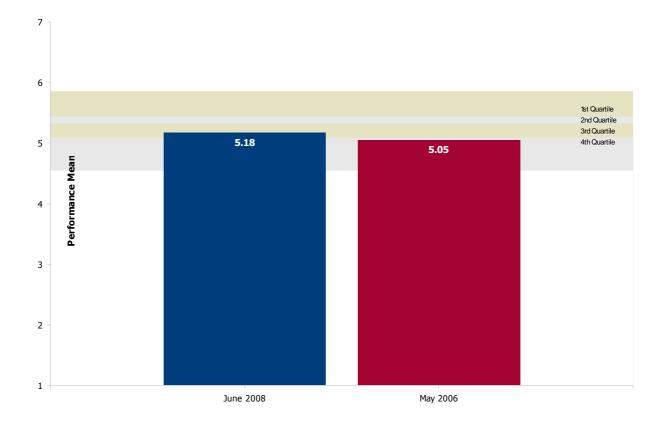

The following scorecard presents similar information to the previous graph, however the emphasis here is on the numerical scores of the University of Canberra Library in each category. The Library performed highest on the category of Library Staff, with a score of 86.3%. The lowest score was identified on Facilities and Equipment at 72.0%. These results are derived using a weighting system across the six survey categories.

The information in the table also enables a comparison of your results with the highest, lowest and median performers in the Insync Surveys database.

2.6 Overall Satisfaction

Respondents were asked to provide an assessment of the overall satisfaction of the library they used most often (see graph below). The overall average of 5.18 (74%), out of a possible high of seven, places the University of Canberra Library in the third quartile (bottom 50%) when compared with other libraries that have been surveyed over the last two years. In comparison with the previous survey, the performance score for the overall satisfaction of the library slightly increased by 0.13%.

Respondents were also asked to provide an assessment of the overall quality of the library they used most often (see graph below). The overall average of 5.27 (75.3%), out of a possible high of seven, places the University of Canberra Library in the third quartile (bottom 50%) when compared with other libraries that have surveyed over the last two years. In comparison with the previous survey, the performance score for the overall quality of the library increased by 0.13%.

3 Summary of Results: Grouped By Demographics

The following tables show the top 5 improvement opportunities for each of the demographic groups in the survey.

When considering the following tables, there are a few things to keep in mind. Firstly, for a small number of groupings, fewer than 10 responses have been received. In these cases, no data will be provided. Secondly, if a variable is highlighted in orange, it means that it is unique – that is, not shared by any other group in that demographic breakdown.

The other things to look out for are:

- Similarities and differences in gap scores within the different demographic groups
- Gap scores of 2.00 or greater

In terms of library visit frequencies, there is a high degree of commonality among the groupings. All the groups identified Databases and electronic resources are adequate for my needs as a concern. Other most commonly occurring concerns are:

- The number of computer workstations is adequate— identified by all except
   'Rarely' users
- The library collection is adequate for my needs identified by all except `Daily' users
- Sufficient copies of high-demand resources are available when I need them identified by all except 'Weekly' and 'Monthly' users

None of the groupings identified unique concerns. As can be seen, three groupings identified significant gap scores (scores of 2.00 or greater).

In terms of online library visit frequencies, there is a high degree of commonality among the groupings. All clients identified the following three concerns:

- The number of computer workstations is adequate
- Sufficient copies of high-demand resources are available when I need them
- The library collection is adequate for my needs

Two of the six groupings identified unique concerns, as indicated by the shaded areas:

- 'Monthly' users are uniquely concerned with the ease of access to information resources
- 'Rarely' users are uniquely concerned with remote access to electronic information resources and services being adequate, and the clarity and usefulness of the information provided by library web pages

As can be seen, four groupings identified significant gap scores.

In terms of campus visit frequencies, there is a moderate degree of commonality among the groupings. The most commonly occurring concerns are:

- The library collection is adequate for my needs identified by all except
   'Fortnightly' users
- Sufficient copies of high-demand resources are available when I need them –
   identified by all except 'Rarely' users

Three of the six groupings identified unique concerns, as indicated by the shaded areas:

- 'Weekly' users are uniquely concerned with access to electronic resources being readily available
- `Fortnightly' group are uniquely concerned with course specific resources being easy to find and access, library staff being readily available to assist them, the adequacy of signage in the library, and the adequacy of seating for individual study

• 'Rarely' users are uniquely concerned with the adequacy of photocopying and printing facilities, opening hours meeting their needs, and the clarity and usefulness of library information guides and of the library catalogue

As can be seen, two groupings identified significant gap scores, namely '2 to 4 days a week' and 'Weekly' users.

As can be seen, there is a high degree of commonality among the groupings. All the groups identified The number of computer workstations is adequate and Computer facilities/electronic equipment are adequate as a concern. Other most commonly occurring variables are:

Sufficient copies of high-demand resources are available when I need them –
 identified by all except 'Science' group

The library collection is adequate for my needs – identified by all except
 'Education' group

Seven of the eight groups recorded significant gap scores. The greatest number of significant concerns were identified in the 'Law' group, namely, the adequacy of the number of computer workstations, the adequacy of the library collection for their needs, that sufficient copies of high demand resources are available when needed, and the adequacy of computer facilities and electronic equipment.

There is a moderate degree of commonality among the groupings. The most commonly occurring variables are:

- The number of computer workstations is adequate identified by all except 'UC
   Academic/Research Staff' and 'Other' groups
- Computer facilities/electronic equipment are adequate identified by all except
   'UC Postgraduate' and 'UC Academic/Research Staff' groups
- The library collection is adequate for my needs identified by all except 'UC
   General Staff' and 'Canberra College'

Two of the six groups identified unique areas of concerns:

 'Canberra College' are uniquely concerned with adequacy of seating for individual study purposes and the clarity and usefulness of library information guides  Other' clients are uniquely concerned with prompt corrective action being taken regarding missing books and journals, and library staff acting on their suggestions and ideas

Two groups of clients - 'UC undergraduate' and 'UC postgraduate' identified significant concerns.

4 Review Summary and Discussion

This year's survey showed that the University of Canberra Library performance superior in comparison to the previous survey. The overall quality and satisfaction ratings places University of Canberra Library in the third quartile (bottom 50%) when compared to other libraries in the Insync Surveys database over the last two years.

The areas of highest importance to Library clients include staff being friendly, helpful, fair and non-discriminatory and displaying professionalism, the adequacy of databases and electronic resources and the ease of access to information resources. Other variables relate to the access to electronic resources being readily available, the ease of using the library website, the adequacy of the library collection, the clarity and usefulness of the information in the library catalogue, and that course specific resources are easy to find and access. Nine of the variables overlap with the 2006 result.

According to library clients, seven of the highest performing areas relate to library staff. More specifically, these relate to staff members' fairness, professionalism, friendliness and helpfulness, timely responses and availability to assist, quality service and clear and accurate feedback. The three remaining variables relate to the clarity and usefulness of the information in the library web pages, adequacy of opening hours, and the ease of using the library website. The top 10 performance list contains four variables from the top 10 importance list. They are:

- Library staff treat me fairly and without discrimination
- Library staff display professionalism
- Library staff are friendly and helpful
- The library web site is easy to use

These variables highlight areas of strengths for University of Canberra Library, with clients identifying them as both important and performing better than the remaining variables. In addition, all of the top 10 performers were common with the top 10 performing list from the 2006 survey; six of the 2008 performance scores have improved since 2006.

When benchmarked against other libraries in the Insync Surveys database, one of the variables performed in the first quartile, and the remaining nine variables in the top 10 performance list performed in the second quartile (top 50%).

The Library performed best in the category of Library Staff, with a score of 86.3%. In a benchmarking sense, this category is a second quartile (top 50%) performer. The lowest score recorded was for Facilities and Equipment at 72.0%, this category being a first quartile performer. The Virtual Library, Service Quality, Communication and Service Delivery categories are all second quartile performers.

A review of the library-wide gap grid has identified one gap score of greater than 2.00, namely:

The number of computer workstations is adequate

This statement recorded a gap score in the "significant" range, and it is prudent to explore how this issue could be addressed.

In terms of frequency of use, the most common visit type for physical and online library visits is '2 to 4 days a week'. Between 1 and 2% of the respondents indicated they visited the library 'Rarely' or 'Monthly'. Therefore, the survey respondents are more likely to be regular users of library services and as such are more likely to have a comprehensive view of the services provided.

Although there are some limited areas of frustration or dissatisfaction in the specific demographic categories, there is a moderate to high degree of similarity in issues across the different libraries and categories of library users. Some of the most frequently mentioned issues are the adequacy of the number of computer workstations, that sufficient copies of high demand resources are available when needed, the adequacy of the library collection, and the adequacy of computer facilities and electronic equipment. The greatest number of significant concerns was identified by the 'Law' group.

In summary, the University of Canberra Library's overall results are positive. From a benchmark point of view, the Library still has room for enhancement. It is important that the leadership team become involved in discussing the results with staff. Furthermore, they should use these discussions to help identify and understand the key issues and develop improvement plans. A number of other areas also require consideration. For instance, there may be areas that clients have identified as low in importance but are high priority in management strategy. These should be reviewed. As well as examining the overall organisational results, it is also important to consider issues unique to different demographics.

When prioritising issues for action, it is recommended that a combination of the provided analyses, analysis of verbatim comments and focus groups be used to gain a more in-depth understanding around what drives clients' concerns.
